FRANKFORT - Agricultural diversification projects were approved for Boyle County and Burgin on Friday by the Kentucky Agricultural Development Board.

Gov. Ernie Fletcher recently approved $1,610,997 in ag projects across the state during a board meeting at Kentucky Exposition Center in Louisville.

Boyle County received $103,000 for a fencing improvement program to improve pasture quantity, quality and efficient using of fencing for livestock producers; $10,300 for a diversification program; $4,000 for a county dairy diversification program to help producers in renovating and modernizing dairy facilities; and $103,000 for forage improvement and utilization program that will improve pastures.

Burgin Independent School Future Farmers of America Chapter got $5,000 to remodel an existing greenhouse and to purchase equipment needed for another working greenhouse facility.
